· HOME ·

Day is done and twilight sheds its lovely radiance over all. The children wait to greet you, the wife eagerly waves her hand as you approach your home. A warm glow of satisfaction steals over you, a thrill of pride, as you draw near the home that shelters them and you. Every tree, shrub and flower has a charm for you, every stone and step a familiar place in your memory.

The roof lines and chimney silhouetted against the sky, the house snugly nestling on the lawn and in this soft light, its outlines softly diffused by the shrubbery, form a picture ever dear to you.

A warm dim glow from lights within, a cozy fireplace, a crackling log, a joyous welcome.

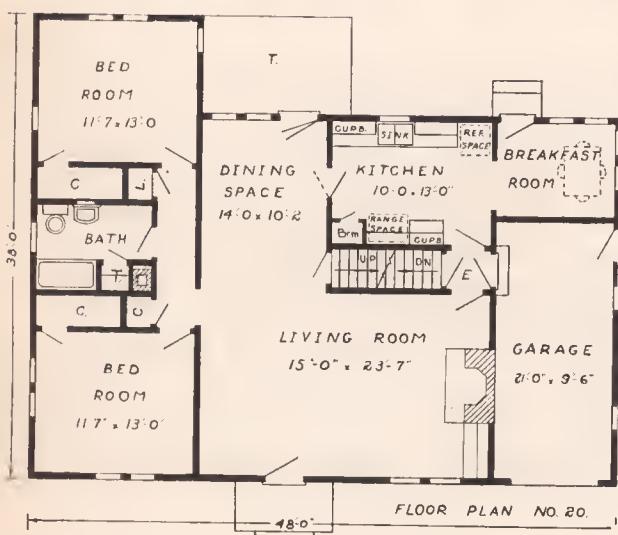

Home — happy home — your home.

In the happiness of the home lies the health and strength of the whole family, of the state and of the nation. The colonists came to America's shores to establish their homes, seeking the happiness to be found in them, hoping to discover here the free expression of conscience and purpose long denied them and apparently never to be realized for their children under the existing conditions; and succeeding generations have made our country the greatest home-owning nation on the globe.

Home is an inspiration to make for yourself an enviable place in the affairs of life. The owning of homes is the glory of the civilized community; for the rented house is not, never has been, and never can be, a real home.

Our organization is dedicated to the purpose of making it possible for each family — for your family — to have its own home; to help you realize that age-old longing to some day build the home of your dreams. By that purpose we justify our existence in the life of the community.

"Daddy, please fix my swing."

A garden is a very important background for a home. A successful garden must be deliberately, carefully and sensibly planned. Consider the location for the pergola, the rose trellis, fence, rock garden, pool and other decorations. Be sure they are placed in locations best suited to them and the house. Any mill man or carpenter can easily build the trellises, fences, and other garden decorations that we show in this book.

An attractive pool is always an asset to a garden.
Your dog deserves a comfortable home.

A guest house, play house or studio will add to your garden.

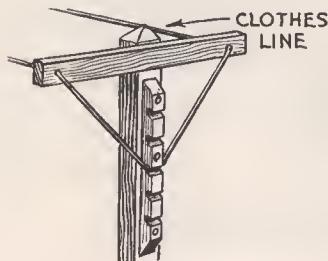

HOUSEHOLD and GARDEN HINTS

Low-Priced Roof

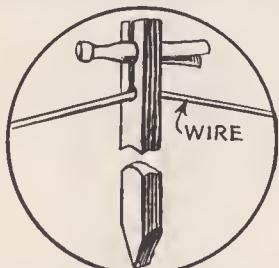

On small buildings, especially those erected for temporary use, a satisfactory roof can be made by following this procedure: Cover the roof, which has plenty of sheeting to make it solid, with a good grade of roofing paper. Then, put on a coating of tar. Before the tar dries sprinkle on dry Portland cement. You'll have a roof to be proud of.

Clothesline Stretcher Lessens Work

Here's an excellent arrangement for stretching a line to just the right degree of tautness. Notches in the strip may be bored with an auger or whittled with a knife. In either raising or lowering the line to the next notch a broom handle is used as a lever. Place the handle between the line and the upright post and pull it toward yourself. In lieu of a strip you can get the same effect by simply driving spikes or hooks into the post.

Non-Slip Clothes Line Prop

Boring a hole through the end of a clothes line prop and inserting a clothespin as shown, will prevent the prop from slipping off the line.

To remove hardened shellac from wood use denatured alcohol.

Soap Makes Lid Easy to Remove

When using a can with a screw cap for odd lots of varnish, paint, etc., smear a liberal coating of ordinary hand soap on the threads and the cap won't stick. Also, the soap will help to make the joint air tight.

Cleaning a Chimney

One good way to loosen excessive soot on the inside of a chimney is to fill a burlap sack with small tree branches, excelsior and a couple of bricks or stones. Tie a rope to the bag and drop it down the chimney. The weight takes the bag down and you pull it back up. Repeat the process several times.

Place for Mother's Sewing

Secure a round cheese box from your grocer and fit it with broom stick legs. Then screw and glue the lid in place as a lower shelf. Cover the box with cretonne or paint it, and if desired, line it with cloth of contrasting color. Adding pockets and a pin cushion completes the job.

Salt Cleans Chimney

Throwing a couple of handfuls of common salt on stove or furnace fires occasionally will help loosen soot accumulations.

Window Washing Aid

You'll find that an auto windshield wiper blade can be used to good advantage as a squeegee when washing the windows of your home. The blade can be put back on the car without any trouble when the job is finished.

Tip On Window Washing

Instead of using soap in the water, add a few drops of ammonia and a little bluing. This mixture will make 'em shine.

If paper sticks to a varnished surface, soften the paper by soaking with olive oil and it will come right off.

Sticky Fly Paper

Heat together 1 pound of rosin and half pint castor oil. Stir until the mixture looks like molasses, then spread it on tough brown paper, using an old paint brush.

Glass Protects Window Sills

To keep from damaging the paint or varnishes on window sills used for potted plants, go to your hardware store or lumber dealer and get him to cut pieces of scrap glass to fit the sills. The glass will give the sills a neat appearance and it is easily cleaned. In order to prevent the moisture from collecting, place a few used matches whittled to a wedge-shaped form, or place a few toothpicks between the glass and sill.

Improvised Play Pen

If you don't have a play pen for your youngster here's the way you can improvise one from a crib. In the morning, remove the bedding and place a piece of plywood or built up floor the size of the mattress over the springs. Not only does this make a good safe play pen but it has the advantage of being easily moved from room to room.

If your clothes line rusts, scour it up good with steel wool then coat it with shellac, using a cloth or old paint brush.

Good Mosquito Chaser

To 1 1/4 oz. castor oil, add 1/2 oz. citronella, 1/2 oz. pine tar, 1/2 oz. sassafras oil, and 1/2 oz. camphor. Smearing a little of this repellent on your hands and face will cause the mosquitos to leave you alone so you can go ahead with your work or fishing.

Fly Trap Bait

Sirup made by dissolving 1 part of brown sugar in 4 parts of water makes a good bait for fly traps. It should be allowed to stand a couple of days to induce fermentation before being used.

Spray Underside of Leaves Too

To get rid of plant lice it is necessary to spray the underside of the leaves as well as the tops. The spray must actually contact the bodies of the lice to kill them. The job can be done easiest with a spray nozzle that points at an angle.

Don't handle or cultivate any kind of beans when the vines are wet. This has a tendency to spread disease and it may ruin the crop.

Repairing Aluminum Pans

Small holes in aluminum pans may be repaired without much trouble by placing the pan firmly against an anvil or other smooth metal surface and tapping around the holes with a ball-pein hammer until they are completely closed. Ordinary solder will not stick to aluminum.

Big Furnace Proves An Economy

In planning a new or remodeled home, don't skimp on the size of the furnace. The difference in cost between an oversized furnace and one that is "just large enough" for the house in an average house is not very great; and when an extra cold winter comes along you are likely to save more in fuel than the original difference in price. You will actually burn more fuel in the smaller furnace when it is driven to its limit than you will need to keep equally warm by operating a bigger furnace well within its capacity. Even in ordinary winter weather a little care in firing will enable you to make a consistent saving in fuel by operating a large furnace at a slow rate, as compared with the higher rate necessary with a small one.

Stopping the Grease

When papering a kitchen, bad grease spots should be coated with shellac to prevent the grease from coming through the new paper.

Repairing Sunken Floor Board

Drive a wood screw into the sunken floor board and pry upward with a wrecking bar. Drive nails through adjacent boards at an angle to anchor the board in place.

TREE SURGERY WITH CONCRETE

Many fine old trees whose hearts are being eaten out by decay can be given new leases on life by the intelligent use of a little concrete as shown above. Cavities occurring from any cause gradually increase in size through lack of nourishment, the tree starves and eventually dies. The cavity should first be thoroughly cleaned and the dead and decayed parts cut out. The entire surface should then be treated with a germicidal solution such as creosote, or crude petroleum. Following this a thick coating of hot tar should be applied to act as an expansion joint.

Then slight movement of the tree will be less likely to cause the concrete to crack. In a large cavity the concrete should be reinforced with 20-penny nails in the cavity and $\frac{1}{4}$ inch rods extending from side to side of the opening. Before filling the cavity the surrounding bark should be cut back about $\frac{1}{2}$ inch from the face of the opening in order to prevent its injury while work is in progress. In mixing concrete for the filling job the following proportions are generally about right: 1 sack cement, $2\frac{1}{4}$ cubic yards sand, 3 cubic yards pebbles and $5\frac{1}{2}$ gallons of water. If a form is required sheets of tin may be tacked across the opening. When the concrete has partially hardened the tin should be removed and the surface shaped to conform to the natural shape of the tree. Damp burlap should be placed over the concrete and kept moist for about 10 days. Eventually the bark and sap wood of the tree will cover the entire filling.

Old Saw Blade Does the Trick

An old saw blade bolted to a long handle will come in mighty handy when you're removing undesirable limbs from shade and fruit trees.

Tree Identification

You won't have any trouble identifying your new fruit trees if you will slip each tree label into a small glass bottle, cork the bottle tightly and tie it to a limb of the tree.

Figuring Pulley Speeds

Maximum efficiency from power pumps, grinders, etc., can be obtained only by running them at the speed specified by the manufacturers. The proper size pulleys to use can be determined by following a couple of simple rules. Let's suppose that the diameter and speed of the driving or engine pulley and revolutions per minute of the driven or pump pulley are known, and we desire to know the diameter of the driven pulley. Rule: Multiply diameter of driving pulley by its speed in revolutions per minute and divide product by required speed of driven pulley. If the pump is already equipped with a pulley, and you wish to purchase one of the correct size for the engine, use this rule: Multiply the diameter of the pump pulley by its speed in revolutions per minute, and divide the product by the speed of the driving pulley.

Renewing Screw Holes

To make wood screws hold in enlarged holes in chairs, force a stiff mixture of sawdust and glue into the holes, before putting in the screws. Allow a couple of days for the glue to dry before using the chair.

Saw Filing Kink

With a candle, smoke the teeth of a saw before starting to file it. This will make it easy to see the fresh file cuts.

Shining Up Auger Bits

To remove rust from the flutes of an auger bit wrap a piece of fine emery cloth around a small rope and work the rope back and forth until the surface is nice and shiny. Be careful not to rub across the cutting edge of the bit.

Glass Cutting Aid

Slipping of a yardstick used as a straightedge in glass cutting can be prevented to a considerable extent by wetting the surface of the yardstick before you start.

First Aid for Steel Squares

To make the figures on an old steel square stand out so they are easy to read try this: Give the square a coat of white lead paint, then remove the paint from the flat surface, using a cloth moistened with turpentine. Paint remaining in the depressions will cause the figures to be quite legible.

Making Razor Blade Safe

A double-edge razor blade may be made safe for handling by applying a strip of adhesive tape along one edge. Fold the tape over to form a backing.

A Homemade Level

Here's an idea for the fellow who needs a level but doesn't have one and can't even borrow one from a neighbor. Get a flat-sided bottle, fill it with water and insert the cork. Turn the bottle on the side and use the bubble of air in the bottle just as you would the bubble in a regular level.

New Surface for Workbench

Is the top of your workbench rough and full of cracks that seem to "swallow up" small items such as washers and rivets? If so, further trouble of this kind can be eliminated by covering the top of the bench with a piece of old linoleum.

When screen wire needs painting, it's best to go over it on both sides.

"Lick" the Meat Shortage by Raising Rabbits

Shown in the above photos is a four-compartment rabbit hutch that is dry, and practically weathertight. The structure is 3 feet wide, 5 feet long and 50 inches high, above the legs. It is built of $\frac{3}{4}$ inch lumber. There is an overhang of roof in front, that keeps out ordinary showers, and serves as a shade in the summer. For protection against a driving rain and cold weather, there is a rolled-up canvas just under the roof which may be pulled down. A space is provided between the compartments for alfalfa and other green feeds which are inserted through the round holes shown. Each front opening is covered with a wire mesh-covered frame that lifts out for access to the interior. The openings in the back are 4 inches high, 7 inches long and a sliding door within a grooved casting permits them to be closed easily.

GROWING TOMATOES

Ten Rules for Home Gardeners

1. Prepare a good seedbed.

2. Use only good strong plants.

A good plant is one 7 to 9 weeks old from seed, 8 to 12 in. tall, with a sturdy stem and a leaf spread equal to its height. The color is medium to dark green with a purplish tinge; the texture of stem and leaves is neither soft and sappy nor hard and woody.

3. Choose wilt-resistant varieties.

Fusarium wilt, a common soil-borne disease, is easily controlled by use of resistant varieties. Early Baltimore and Pritchard are good medium-early varieties. They have medium vine growth, need about 4 by 3½ ft. of space. Rutgers and Prairiana, mid-season kinds, with larger vines need about 4 by 5 ft. Late resistant types are Marglobe and Illinois Baltimore. Stone is late but not resistant.

4. Choose variety adapted to soil.

Late varieties may prove unsatisfactory on dark soils. Early Baltimore, Pritchard and Prairiana are suited to these soils.

5. Set as early as weather will permit.

Set early tomatoes as soon as frost danger is past.

6. Do a good job of transplanting.

In transplanting, set the plants 2 or 3 in. deeper than they were in the pot or flat, and press soil firmly around the roots. Do not let the plants wilt in the time between taking them from the bed and setting them in the garden. Water and shade the plants if weather is dry and hot.

7. Vary spacing with soil.

Dark soils as a rule produce larger plants than light colored soils. Spacing should be adjusted accordingly.

8. Direct seeding is possible.

Where earliness is not a consideration, plant seeds directly in garden, choosing a soil that does not bake or crust readily. If crusting occurs, break crust lightly.

Sow 5 or 6 seeds to the hill about 1 in. deep. Thin the plants to 1 per hill when 6 in. high.

9. Control weeds.

Get rid of weeds while they are small. Frequent shallow cultivation is needed. Pull or hoe out weeds in the row.

10. Stake only where space is limited.

Staking increases costs, adds to labor and reduces yield per plant. Where space is limited, however, it is recommended because it permits more plants to be grown and thus increases the yield per area.

Methods of Staking and Pruning

These suggestions are for gardeners who, because of lack of space or other reasons, wish to support their tomato vines so they will not sprawl on the ground.

Single-stake single-stem pruning. Set into the ground next to each plant a strong stake 4 to 5 feet long. When plants start to branch, tie a strong cord firmly around stake and loosely around stem of plant just below each fruit cluster. Remove all secondary stems (auxiliary shoots) as soon as they appear. For two-stem pruning proceed in same way but let first secondary stem that appears develop along with the main stem. Tie the two stems with the same cord.

Trellises. A good trellis consists of a strong wire strung from posts extending about 4 ft. above the ground and set between two rows spaced 18 in. apart with plants set 24 in. apart and staggered. Run twine from base of plant to strong overhead wire and weave plants along twine. Posts and wires must be strong to hold the load.

Boxing and framing. With either of these methods little or no pruning is done and there is no tying.—Reprinted from University of Illinois Circular.

Is Your Garden on a Hillside?

If so, be sure to lay out the rows to run horizontally along the side of the hill, not up and down the hill. If your rows run up and down the hill, rain may wash away the seed and your top soil too.

Plant Corn in Short Rows

In planting sweet corn, it's better to plant several short rows, than one long row. Pollen from the tassels must fall on the silks before the kernels will form and it stands a much better chance of falling on the silks when the stalks are bunched up.

Cans Protect Plants

Transplanted tomato and cabbage plants in small gardens may be protected by surrounding them with tin cans from which the tops and bottoms have been removed, sunk into the ground about 2 in. or by bands of heavy paper.

To Ripen Late Tomatoes

Green tomatoes that would be caught by frost if left on the vines may be ripened in a covered coldframe. Put a thick layer of hay in the coldframe and bury the tomatoes in the hay. Ripening may be hastened or retarded by controlling the amount of ventilation. Only good, firm tomatoes showing white on the blossom end should be stored.

Killing Corn Ear Worms

Ever pick a nice "mess" of sweet corn and find that almost every ear had been damaged by corn ear worms? This trouble can be prevented to a considerable extent by using an application of white mineral oil (medicinal oil) containing .2 per cent of pyrethrum. One pint will treat around 550 ears.

The mineral oil should be applied after the silks have turned brown—never before. Use a medicine dropper, putting about twenty drops in the mass of silks of each ear. For a large ear use about 30 drops.

This mixture will not injure the corn, leaves no flavor, and will not damage the corn for food.

Time-Saving Home-Made Gardening Tools

A hill marker as shown in Fig. 1 is a great time saver when planting cucumbers, melons, etc., as it digs evenly-spaced holes for all the seeds in one operation. The marker is simply a piece of board onto which is nailed several pegs made of broom stick, and a piece of 2x4-inch material to serve as a handle. The size to make the marker and the location of the pegs varies according to the job at hand.

Fig. 2 shows how a depth gauge can be attached to a broom stick that is used to make holes for tomato, cabbage and other plants. Two pieces of wood approximately ¾x1x5 inches in size are notched in the middle to fit over the stick and bolts are used to clamp the pieces in place, as shown in the picture.

Using Old Garden Seed

If you used held-over garden seeds this year, you'd better check closely on what comes up and replant promptly if the desired number of plants do not appear.

Seeds of parsnips, salsify and parsley are usually good for only one year's holding. Onions, sweet corn, peas and carrots generally germinate for at least two years. Celery, tomato and bean seed usually still grow after the third year. The maximum time limit on radish, cabbage, beets, turnip, squash and spinach is usually four years.

ATTENTION! PROSPECTIVE HOME BUILDERS

First of all! Know your cost.

A good plan and a well defined contract are important. "Early understandings make long friendships."

Select a design that is in harmony with your location. Do not build a small low house between two large tall ones. Do not build a row of houses alike or even two alike side by side. Landscaping is important and often neglected.

Foundation footings should be substantial and should rest on solid ground with special attention given to flue and pier foundations.

All flues should have flue lining. Most city ordinances require it.

Steel girders are preferable to wood girders, even though they cost more.

On spans over 10' joists should be 2" x 10" and on spans over 16' they should be 2" x 12". Ceiling joist should be 2" x 6" except on inexpensive houses. Proper bridging of joist is important.

Rafters should be 2" x 6" on spans over 16'. Proper roof bracing is important.

Use building paper that will expand and contract. If it breaks between boards it is worthless.

Insulation is important, especially in extremely warm and extremely cold climates.

Do not use wood shingles on roofs of less than 6' to 12' pitch.

Where wood shingles are used, sheathing should be spaced 2" but where other roofings are used sheathing should be laid solid.

If wood shingles are to be stained, it should be done before shingles are laid.

Plastered walls should be rodded before finish coat is applied. Be sure plaster is thoroughly dry before applying finish coat.

In finishing care should be taken not to make hammer marks. They show up more plainly after varnishing or enameling than before.

Use well seasoned and dry oak flooring and finish lumber. Dampness is difficult to detect in oak lumber. Oak finish lumber including flooring is likely to turn dark in spots if it gets wet before it is filled.

If properly applied one coat of filler, one coat of shellac, and two coats of varnish make a first class job. A fairly good job may be had by using one coat of filler and two coats of varnish.

A coat of wax on an ordinary polished floor three or four times a year will keep it like new almost indefinitely.

For exterior painting, a priming coat and two additional coats of paint properly applied make a good job. Two coats of paint make a fairly good job.

Do not paint or varnish over wet or damp wood. Paint should not be put on too thick—better use more coats.

The weakest places in most houses are: Chimney bases, girder supports, porch pier bases, roof valleys and outside steps.

In building a salable residence, it must be attractive, practical and well finished.

Small conveniences mean much to the housekeeper.
